ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

THE CLOUD SLOWLY LIFTING.

Though Great Excitement and Anxiety Still Prevail.

The Military Thermodynamically Organized and Fearful Slaughter the Inevitable Result of any Attack that May be Made--Incidents of the Troubles.

CINCINNATI, O., March 31.—As the sun rose this morning it looked down upon the ruins of the Court House. The rays shone upon the polished brass of the cannon before the entrance of the Jail, and gleamed upon the bayonets of the soldiers, lying in the mud. Everywhere in the place were the militia and the police, while the barricades, the stacked muskets and the predominance of military uniforms gave the scene a death-like aspect.

All possible preparations for defense were made and the blood-stained pavements and bullet-pierced walls around showed this was not trouble over.

The hope is general. It was feared last night that the mob would attempt to pluck the life out of the city, but this was prevented and now it is every man's desire to believe that the pest is past.

The city is now like a field after a battle, the authorities having at last got possession of the rebels. While there was still at the Court House an excited throng, yet the mob spirit is wanting, and it is evident that the pluck and daring of the rioters has gone.

The terrible lesson of Saturday night has not been wasted, and the mob has awakened to the fact that it means death to go against the law.

To go beyond this line means instant destruction, and the yawning mouths of the cannon and the ready muskets are terrible reminders to the throng.

Few of the rioters have the bravery to advance in the face of such terrible odds, and now that the military have asserted their power, it is evident that they are not forthcoming to be slaughtered.

But the authorities are prepared, and on the slight sign of trouble the most complete concentration of men and arms will be made. The mob will be compelled to lay down their arms, but action will be taken at once.

The time for sober after thought is near at hand, and the day of the decision will be with the full realization of the horrors of the scenes which have so recently been enacted.

The terrible fight which was fought over the burning of the Court House and the attacks upon the Jail reach to enormous figures, and the worst of all is that some of the damage was irreparable.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE COURT-HOUSE.

The destruction of the Court-house is an insatiable loss.

The flames had full control for hours, and up went everything that their hungry tongues could reach.

It was a loss nearly out of power to repair.

The County buildings there are a loss.

citement. Crowds gathered at every corner and discussed the situation. Many saloons were open in spite of the Mayor's order to close them. The police and the talking "fight." A roisterous soldier came across a gang of a lot of young folks, loaded up to the muzzle with bad whisky, who were trying to get drunk. They imbibed mutton with brick-bats. This was at The tenth and Walnut. They got within a block of the canal bridge—which to go upon was almost certain death—when they dispersed.

Another crowd of nearly fifty gathered in about the same neighborhood, and marched to Market Hall. There effected an entrance to the flock in the jail. Their object was not plunder, but to obtain possession of the six-pounds of the Second Battery of the O. N. G. of which there were about half a dozen. The men were busy putting the wheels on the carriages when they were surprised by Company E, Sixth Regiment, of Lancaster, commanded by Captain Gets, and by Company D, of the Second Battery. The gang was taken. It was each for himself and the devil takes the hindmost. A half dozen were captured. After the excitement had cooled down, the roisterous groups on the outside dispersed, the prisoners were quietly taken by way of the canal to the Central Station. The police sergeant in charge was so much at his wits end that he sent a dozen or more of names of those to John Hans, twenty, single, butcher, of Spring Grove avenue, between Marshall avenue and Spring Grove avenue; Chas. Gilbert, thirty-seven, single, shoemaker, of Second Street, and Leonard Hassold, thirty-seven, single, rolling mill hand, Twenty-first Ward.

Companies E and D, Sixth Regiment, remained at Market Hall all night. A horse race was also run out. Ex-Mayor Jacobs took great interest in the means adopted to protect Music Hall.

PAWN SHOPS PLUNDERED.

At 10 o'clock last night a crowd of young fellows started out to plunder the pawn shops. Marching down Central avenue with cries of "fall in," they broke into the premises of the pawn brokers and helped themselves to whatever they could lay their hands on, particularly to guns and pistols. They declared that when they had fully armed themselves they would attack the militia at the Court House.

A couple of private watchmen reported what was going on to the Central Station, and a squad of police were sent out. They came to the pawn brokers' stores on Sixth street. To scare them they fired over their heads. Only one of them was wounded. A dozen of them were captured and sent to Market Hall. The mob had got possession of double-barred shot-guns, and two or three had regular military rifles and bayonets.

Some time ago a company of military patrolled the neighborhood, headed by a squad of police, who warned all pedestrians of the danger of remaining on the streets.

Men belonging to the Sixth and Seventh regiments guarded the City Buildings and Park.

THE LAST SKIRMISH.

At 12:10 the fighting was renewed at Court and Walnut. The mob began firing on the militia who were returning from the fight. They wounded or killed two of the militia, who were carried into the drug store at the southwest corner of the streets mentioned. There appeared to be about twenty-five men in the drug store, but they were few who were looting the stores more than any gathering during the entire afternoon. The skirmish was not of long duration. The militia had been brought into use by the soldiers.

The two men shot and carried to the drug store were Otto Pfeifer, a tailor, who lives near the Volney Hotel, and John W. Weller, who was on his way home and received a bullet in the head while crossing the street. The other was Wm. Booker, aged 21, who lives in New Street. Both were sent to one of the "Over-the-hill" hospitals, and are continuing to the New Richmond packet. He was shot while crossing the street, reviving musket balls in his right hand and in the thigh. The bullet was so near the bone that the soldiers were knocked down from the shelves in Kirschbach's drug store, the first mentioned at the southwest corner of Court and Walnut. None of the militia were hurt in the skirmish.

PROMPT ACTION OF THE GOVERNOR.

COLUMBUS, March 3.—It was after one o'clock yesterday when the Governor decided to order out the infantry companies of the State to proceed at once to Cincinnati. He had been in constant communication with Governor Magoffin and the railroad officials, who informed him of all the assistance in their power relative to the transportation of troops. About 2,300 rounds of ammunition and 100 rounds of grape and canister were to be taken to the depots in Cincinnati. Ammunition has been secured from the United States authorities.

The Sixth Regiment, Colonel Pock, commanding, passed through here this afternoon on their way to the front. Governor Hardly and Secretary McConville were at the depot to meet them. Orders were given to have all the mail to all troops passing through here.

Governor Hardly this evening went to Manager McFerrin's office, from which place he will be in direct communication with the authorities in Cincinnati.
